

As Vice-President Corporate Development, Olivia leads Plenary Group's business development activities and government relations across Canada.

During her time at Plenary, the Canadian P3 project pipeline has grown from less than $1 billion to over $20 billion in new projects annually. Plenary now operates in 10 provinces and territories, as well as a number of municipalities. Olivia has also led Plenary Group's communications activities, including project-specific communications for the company's active concessions, corporate marketing, media relations, stakeholder engagement, and acting as the company spokesperson.

Before joining Plenary Group, Olivia was Director of Corporate Strategy with PPP Canada, the federal government's Public-Private Partnership (PPP) agency, where she promoted PPPs with municipalities, provinces and territories across Canada. Olivia was actively involved in developing PPP Canada's policies and guidelines for the implementation of PPP procurements within the federal government and with other levels of government. She equally led the Crown Corporation's communications and media relations team.

Olivia previously worked for Canada's leading government relations firm, Hill & Knowlton, where she specialized in public affairs, federal government relations and stakeholder management. Olivia has also worked in various roles on Parliament Hill.

Olivia holds a B.Com. from the University of Ottawa and studied law at the University of Paris (Sorbonne).
